THE BLUE BOTTLE FLY.

Buzzing and gay, in the early dawn,
Fresh from a nap on the parlor wall,
Out for a flight, over garden and lawn,
Fearing no trouble and dreading no fall,
Came a fly—
A lively, frolicsome, blue-bottle fly—
And his feet
And his style
As complete,
As his brain
Was replete
With the mischief that laughed in his eye!

"What glorious fun I'll have to-day,
When the baby's asleep and the nurse away
When Rover lies by the kitchen door!
I'll awake them both and make them roar!
Oh, what larks!"
Cried the rollicking, restless, blue-bottle fly;
"What a cry,"
Said the fly,
"There will be
After me,
When I've done
With my fun!"
And he wickedly winked his wee eye!

"Then I'll go and dance on grandpapa's head
While he struggles to brush me away;
And I'll tickle his ear till he'll wish I was dead
And over the table at dinner I'll play
Back and forth,
And feast on crumbs from a freshly-baked pie!
And I'll sip
From the lip
Of each glass
That may pass
All sweet things
Dinner brings!"
Quoth this riotous, blue-bottle fly.

But, alas for the plans he had laid!
And alas for the plan just begun!
For this fly soon lit in the grateful shade,
To escape the hot rays of the sun,
And to dream
Of the sights that should soon greet his eye;
When, unseen,
From the green
Of a limb
Above him,
Down a thread,
On his head,
Fell a spider,
Who coolly devoured that blue-bottle fly.

The Flower's Mission.

There was once a little flower,
Growing where the weeds were tall,
And the blue sky, bending over,
It could see, and that was all.

Weeds were so thick about it
That they shut the sun away,
But the little flower kept growing,
And upreaching, day by day.

"I know I'm meant for something,
Else I never would be here,"
It kept saying, o'er and o'er,
To a briar bending near.

"I think you are mistaken,"
Was the briar's cold reply;
"Such a feeble thing as you are
Will live a day and die."

But the faith of the flower was steadfast,
And it turned its face to God,
Believing it had a mission
Above the earth's green sod.

In the long, sweet days of summer,
Its little buds burst wide,
And the air with springtime fragrance
It made sweet on every side.

Now the weeds that hedged the flower,
Grew close by a sick girl's room,
And a breeze bore through the window
A breath of the flower's perfume.

And "Oh!" she cried, in gladness,
"I can smell the old home flowers!
Bring me a little blossom,
To cheer the lonely hours!"

They sought through the garden vainly;
"No flowers are there," they said.
"There are," she cried; "I smell them!"
And so she would not be misled.

Again they sought in the garden,
And, led by a wandering wind,
Deep among the weeds and briars,
They chanced the flower to find.

They brought it in and laid it
In the sick girl's wasted hand;
And she kissed it, over and over;
But they could not understand

What it was she said to the flower,
Of the old home far away—
Or the words so sweet with comfort
The flower in return did say.

Each morning they brought a blossom
To brighten the sick girl's room;
And the heart of the humble flower
Was glad, in the tall weeds's gloom.

"I knew I was meant for something,"
It said to the far-off sky;
"I was sure I'd a nobler mission
Than just to live and to die."

And so, till the summer ended,
It gave a blossom each day,
To tell the homesick stranger
Of the old home far away.

They whispered to her of Heaven,
And the angels and it seemed
As if they brought her a message
From the land of which she dreamed.

One morn they came to the flower,
And told it she was dead;
Then it gave its last, sweet blossom;
Then they told it what she said;

"It has been sweet-comfort to me,
Sick, in a stranger land;
That is the message I send it;
It will know and understand.

Then the flower looked up and whispered
To its steadfast friend, the sky,
"Thank God for the mission he gave me!
With a happy heart I die."

Be sure you were meant for something!
Keep faith in the God above!
And your life may make others happy
With its flowers of human love.

THE BLACKSMITH.

Young Joe the Blacksmith was a sturdy fellow—rather tall, broad shouldered, arms big with muscle, and a good natured face, well worth seeing, if only for the bath of good humor it gave you.

Everbody liked him; and his forge was a resort for village idlers, who loved to watch him strike the shinning sparks from the glowing iron, and listen to his cheery voice—for something of a singer was Joe.

There was an hour in the day, from three to four in the afternoon, when Joe would have none of them. Why? Because the child Nellie, across the way—a blue-eyed, sunny thing, dearly loved by the blacksmith—always spent that hour with him.

As Joe worked, she was wont to stand, with hands behind her back, watching him in an old fashioned way, quiet and talkative by turns. Sometimes she asked strange questions that puzzled him.

"Joe?" she would commence.

"Well, cherub?"

"Doesn't the fire burn beautiful, Joe?"

"Yes, dear."

"What makes it, Joe?"

"The wind from the bellows, cherub."

"What makes the wind from the bellows do it, Joe?"

"My working of 'em, dear."

"I don't mean that, Joe; but what should make the wind do it even then?"

Much puzzled, and being no scientist, he would answer:

"Joe's not wise enough to tell you that, cherub!" and then finding him puzzled by her questions, the blue eyes, on occasions like these, were wont to widen with astonishment, for she thought Joe knew very nearly everything.

When she was leaving, it was her habit to put her arms around his neck and kiss him; and they loved each other very, very much.

But time goes by for young and old. It seemed but a little while till Nellie became almost a woman, and it was no longer proper for her to go to Joe's forge, but to be sure he could go to her.

And now, not to linger by the way, Joe had learned to love her with the love of manhood, and she returned his love. They would have been very happy but for Nellie's father; the old man would have her look higher than a blacksmith. So when Richard Ross—young, handsome, and rich—came to the cottage, the old man smiled and encouraged him.

This Richard Ross was not worthy of Nellie. For all his riches, his heart was merest dross beside the pure gold of Joe's. When he passed the shop the sturdy smith brought his hammer down like an angry giant; for, you see, this Richard Ross was stealing his life away.

Yes, stealing his life away. Joe's ruddy face grew pale; if the torture continued long, death would be the end. You may judge from this how much he loved her.

Still he went to see her. If he found Richard Ross there, he left hastily, and, rushing back to the forge, worked like mad till midnight.

One evening Nellie's father shut the door in his face, with a "I don't want you coming here any more!"

Joe knew how obedient the girl was and the words struck him like a sword. The next day he received a note, so sad, from little Nellie. It said she loved him still, but he must not come again. Her father said so. He commanded her to listen to Richard Ross; she had never disobeyed her father yet; she could not do so now. "But I will plead and pray, dear Joe, and you must hope."

But Joe did not hope. He gave her up. He felt angry with her, too, for her obedience to her father.

Time went on, and the blacksmith grew paler yet. He grew morose, too, and unlike himself; and the village loungers no longer loved to gather at his forge. The name of Richard Ross maddened him. Once he caught one by the throat for saying Richard and Nellie were to be married soon.

One day the idiot of the village, "Crazy Sam," stood watching Joe. The lad had something on his weak mind, and nodded and shook his head in glee; then drew from his pocket two silver pieces and gazed on them with swelling pride. Finally he asked:

"Why don't you cry, Joe Mann? why don't you cry?"

The black smith glowered on him from under a frowning brow.

"I'd cry if I was you, Joe," said the idiot; "I'd cry if Richard Ross stole my gal."

With a sound that was half a roar of rage, and half a groan of pain, Joe sprung upon him, and in an instant had borne him to the floor and set his knee upon the idiot's breast.

In another moment he might have killed the boy, but that the idiot's helplessness and terror made him pause and recall him to himself. A thought struck him.

"Who told you to say that?" he demanded.

"Richard Ross. He gave me the money for to say it."

"The low hound!" shrieked Joe. "Heaven have mercy on his soul!"

He released Crazy Sam, and went about his work again quite calmly; but the pallor of his face was awful to see.

When evening drew on, he picked up a long, rusty knife blade, and fitted it into a stout handle. Then he stepped to his grind-stone, and sharpened and ground the rusty blade.

Ah! but Joe was changed! There was despair and murder in his noble heart.

The night fell; and he stood, knife in hand, silently waiting.

"Richard Ross leaves her home at ten," he muttered, "and goes on the lonely road through the woods."

When it became nine he could wait no longer, but sped away to his ambush. Behind two trees, growing close together, which completly hid him he crouched and listened.

He had an hour to wait. The silence was awful. No bird sung among the trees, and the leaves hung lifeless, stirred by no breath of wind.

Joe pressed his hand to his forehead and found it burning hot. He began to be afraid, he knew not of what, perhaps of his own soul. He felt his murderous purpose weakening. He rose and walked about the wood and thought upon his wrongs. This gave him new resolve, and he returned to his hiding place, and crouched again. But again his terror was renewed, and the hand which held the knife trembled. The village clock struck ten, and at every stroke he shuddered.

He heard foot steps on the road. Nearer, nearer, came the man for whom he waited. For a moment Joe's mind seemed gone. Before his eyes he saw a great sea of blood. From him fell great drops of cold sweat. Nearer the footsteps came. His brain cleared and he could dimly see the young man's form a few feet from him. He gazed through the trees to the sky, and saw a single star looking down upon him like the eye of God. With a shriek of fear he flung the knife from him and fled—from murder.

It was over, and blood was not upon his soul.

All that night he lay like one dead upon the floor of his little shop. The morning sun, forcing its way through the dusty window, fell upon him there. Miserable as the man was, it saw no better sight than this crushed soul saved from crime.

But some one brighter than the sunlight entered at the door. It was Nellie. She saw him there upon the floor and her blue eyes filled with tears. She bent over him and touched him gently.

"Joe! dear Joe!" she called.

He sprung to his feet, gazed on her coldly, and would have fled, but she restrained him.

"Joe," she said. "I have hoped—I have pleaded—I have prayed—I have won. Take me in your arms."

Not yet did he understand her, and she added:

"Father has learned to pity you and me, Joe, and says we may be husband and wife. Richard Ross has gone forever."

So Joe took her in his arms, and all his repentance and joy burst forth in a flood of tears.

A Thrilling War Story.

Henry J. Savage, one of the soldiers' home veterans, tells the following thrilling story of a war incident:

The oft-mooted question "Was ever a desperately wounded soldier shot dead, at his own earnest solicitations, by a comrade?" is answered in the affirmative by your humble servant. It happened as follows: The writer, a member of G company, First Delaware infantry, was then attached to the Third brigrade (Weber's), Third division (French's) Second corps (Sumner's). After wading Antietam creek, plunging through plowed fields, stubble-fields and cornfields, his regiment was finally located with in plain view of the enemy, when the welcome command rang along the line to "load and fire at will." It was then that our daily target practice at Fortress Monroe came into excellent use, as many a poor devil of the Sixth Alabama learned to his cost. After firing eleven rounds the writer was wounded and ordered to the rear. While retreating in good order, but making most excellent time, his route led him through a portion of the Irish brigade. Here he saw a sight that capped the climax of horror. A member of that devoted brigade was aimlessly stumbling around with both eyes shot out, begging some one, "for the love of God," to put an end to his misery. A lieutenant of the Fourth New York was passing by, and, seeing the poor fellow's condition, and hearing his appeal, he halted before him and asked if he really meant what he said.

"O, yes, comrade," was the reply, "I cannot possibly live and my agony is unendurable."

Without an other word the officer drew his pistol, placed it the victim's right ear, turned away his head, and pulled the trigger. A half-wheel, a convulsive gasp, and one more unfortunate had passed over to the silent majority.

"It was better thus," said the lieutenant, replacing his pistol and turning toward the writer, "for the poor fellow could—"

Just then a solid shot took the lieutenant's head off, and the "subsequent proceedings interested him no more."

During a conference of clergymen, the following dialogue was overheard between two newsboys: 'I say, Jim, what's the meaning of so many ministers being to-gether?' 'Why,' answered Jim, scornfully, 'they always meet once a year to exchange sermons with each other.'

A MIDNIGHT CALL.

Last summer I lived on the outskirts of the town, where I could keep chickens and not have them roosting in the bedroom window of my next door neighbor. Therefore I kept them—not for profit—but for the pleasure of having my garden seeds scratched up every morning before sunrise; it was good exercise to plant them over every day, you know.

One night about half-past eleven o'clock, I was gently aroused from my peaceful slumbers, by the blunt end of Mrs. Acker's left elbow seeking for my short ribs, with mellifluous voice sounding in my ear:

"Wake up! Wake up! Some one is stealing our chickens!"

I slid out upon the floor in the dark, and reached for my clothing. In my haste I hopped and floundered around, like a shark on dry land, upsetting the wash-pitcher and bowl—one taking a carrom on my best corn, and the other dropping gracefully upon the top of my boot, making a trout-pond of the interior. After tumbling over a chair, wash-stand, towel-rack, etc., I sat down on the floor—not through any desire of my own—but because of the tangled condition of my wearing gear and legs. Soon, however, I had myself in condition to sally forth—minus boots—accompanied by my shot-gun.

The night was darker than the mind of the most benighted heathen, and I groped my way along as quietly as possible, hoping to surprise the stealer of fowls.

All of a sudden I streched myself at full length upon the ground, and began to murmur, soft and low, a little article of prose, which arrises irresistibly to my mind at times. While repeating the words, I took my left foot in both hands, and detached a piece of glass from the heel of my stocking.

Mrs. Acker came rushing out, and began to urge some one not to kill me, but take the chickens in welcome. So much interested was I, in repeating the little story, that I may have been somewhat abrupt in my remarks to her—for she closed the door with a bang, after saying:

"I don't care if you do get murdered! and the chickens stolen, too! So there!"

This reply arousing my ire, I sprung up and rushed in the direction of the hen-house, urged on by the loud clamor of the hen community.

In my hurried progress I encountered the dog-kennel, upset it, and sought the bosom of mother earth; sprung up again, with the dog fastened to my trousers; tried to coax him into the belief that I was his master, by persuasively using the butt end of my gun; succeeded in tearing loose, after he had gone the length of his chain, and finally reached the door of the hen-house.

I cocked my gun, opened the door, and, in my most commanding tone, ordered the thief to come out and be shot.

I received no reply, save a monotonous "squawk! squawk! squawk!"

I became bold, stepped inside the door, closed it, and determined to have revenge for my mishaps.

I struck a match, and saw—the old rooster dangling, head downward, from the perch—having slipped his foot through a small knot-hole, lost his balance in his struggles, and now being unable to extricate himself.

I returned to the house, repeating my little prose lesson, put a court plaster on my heel, and retired.

In the morning I serenely watched Mrs. Acker obliterate Towser's trade mark from my pantaloons.

UNTIE THE STRINGS.

Said one of the most successful merchants of Cleveland, O., to a lad who was opening a parcel: "Young man, untie the strings; do not cut them."

It was the first remark that he had made to a new employe. It was the first lesson the lad had to learn, and it involved the principles of successor failure in his business career. Pointing to a well dressed gentle man behind the counter, he said:

"There is a man who always whips out his scissors and cuts off the strings of the packages in three or four places. He is a good salesman, but he will never be anything more. I presume he lives from hand to mouth, and is more or less in debt. The trouble with him is that he was never taught to save.

"I told the boy just now to untie the strings, not so much for the value of the string as to teach him that everything is to be saved and nothing wasted. If the idea can be firmly impressed upon the mind of a beginner in life that nothing was made to be wasted, you have laid the foundation of success."

An American in Russia.

A reporter recently interviewed Baron de Wagstaffe, of Russia, who was looking into the railroad industries of Detroit. In the course of the conversation the baron was asked:

"What are the facilities for travel to all parts of the empire?"

"Besides the railroads, it is by post-roads. We have a most perfect system of post-roads all over the empire."

"To the farthest points?"

"Yes, sir; from the Pacific coast westward, and from the northern shore south. The best way I can illustrate the perfection of our system of post-roads and safety of such travel, is to tell of a New York gentleman, now dead—a relative of the Stuyvesants—who for his own pleasure started from the Pacific coast to travel alone overland through Asiatic Russia to Petersburg. He couldn't speak a word of any language but his own, and relied entirely on his own intelligence and a United States passport to help him on the journey. His passport had the American spread eagle at its top, while the Russian passports have the Russian eagle [with the crown above the eagle's head] at their tops. At every station the New York gentleman observed that he was given the preference over all other travelers; that he got the best horses and at once. No matter if other travelers had reached the station ahead of him and in need of fresh horses, he was provided first. He made the trip safely, speedily and comfortably, and when he reached my home he was most enthusiastic in praise of our roads and the promptness and courtesy of our post officials, while he could not speak in terms too enthusiastic over the respect they had shown him all through Russia because of the United States passport."

"What was the secret of his good fortune?"

"Chiefly out of respect to 'The Eagle' and the ignorance of the postmasters of the nature of the gentleman's business, which they concluded to be of an official character, and so they treated him as they would a high Russian official."

"And how is that?"

"All those in authority in Russia, when travelling are given a preference by a special passport, such as was bestowed on the American traveler."

"Then it is not dangerous to travel in any part of Russia?"

"Not at all. I often travel with my wife and daughters to my home at the foot of the Ural mountains, 400 miles by post-roads after leaving the railroads. While I generally have a revolver with me, it is usually on the floor in the straw—under the seat or somewhere—I don't know where, for I never used it. That is another result of our passport system."

"Because by the system all dangerous characters are at once apprehended and placed under guard, when on the other hand no murder or other crime can be committed without almost immediate detection and punishment."

RELIGIOUS DRUMMER.

One of the travelers for a New York dry goods house recently arrived in an interior State, to find that one of his best customers was about to transfer his custom to a Boston firm.

"Didn't we always do well by you?" asked the New Yorker, as he sat down for an explanation.

"Yes, I believe so."

"Didn't we ship goods to you promptly?"

"Yes."

"Did we ever press you in a pinch?"

"No, I can't say that you did."

"We can't understand why you should leave our house all of a sudden, after buying of us for several years."

"You know that I attend church?"

"Yes; and so do I."

"Do you? I didn't know that. I am looked upon as a Christian."

"And so am I. I have got the date of my baptism right here in my note book."

"Is that so? Well, our church is in need of repairs. We were talking it over the other day, when the Boston drummer was here, and he at once subscribed ten dollars."

"Ten dollars! Why, that's only two kegs of nails! Put me down for thirty dollars cash, a new silk hat, and a suit of clothes for the minister."

"Do you mean it?"

"Of course I do; and if that two-cent Christian from Boston dares to give another five dollars, I'll send you down a $600 church organ and a $500 a year man to play on it. We are a house that never makes any great display of gospel hymns and religious tracts: but when a Boston drummer bluffs, we show our religious hand, and scoop the pot every time."

And the merchant still continues to deal with the New York firm.

'How do you know when a cyclone is coming?' asked a stranger of a Western man. 'Oh, we get wind of them,' was the reply.

MARRIED BY SURPRISE.

Old Governor Saltonstall, of Connecticut, was a man of some humor as well as perseverance in effecting the end he desired. He resided in New London and among the many anecdotes told of him is the following:

Of the various sects that had flourished for their day and then ceased to exist, was one known as the Rogerites, so called from their founder, a John or Tom, or some other Rogers, who settled not far from the goodly town of New London. The distinguished tenet of their sect was their denial of the propriety and the scripturality of the form of marriage. "It is not good for man to be alone. This they believed, and also that one wife only should "cleave to her husband." But then this should be a matter of agreement merely, and the couple should come together and live as man and wife, dispensing with all the forms of marriage covenant. The old Governor used frequently to call upon Rogers and talk the matter over with him, and endeavor to convince him of the impropriety of living with Sarah as he did. But neither John nor Sarah would give up the agreement. It was a matter of conscience with them; they were very happy together as they were; of what use then could a mere form be? Suppose they would thereby escape scandal, were they not bound "to take up the cross" and live according to the rules of the religion they professed? The Governor's logic was powerless.

He was in the neighborhood of John one day, and, meeting him, accepted an invitation to dine with him, Conversation, turned, as usual, on the marriage subject.

"Now, John," said the Governor, after a long discussion on the point, why will you not marry Sarah? Have you not taken her to be your lawful wife?"

"Yes, certainly," replied John' "but my conscience will not permit me to marry her in the form of the world's people."

"Very well. But you love her?"

"Yes."

"And respect her?"

"Yes."

"And cherish her as bone of your bone and flesh of your flesh?"

"Yes, certainly I do."

"And Sarah, you love him, and respect and cherish him?"

"Certainly I do."

"Then," cried the Governor, rising, "by the laws of God and the Commonwealth of Connecticut, I pronounce you to be man and wife!"

The raving and rage of John and Sarah were of no avail—the knot was tied by the highest authority in the State.

She Saved his Life.

There was a lot of drummers seated around the stove.

"I tell you what it is," said the St. Louis commercial traveler, "the boys can just make all the fun they please of the Lake City, but as for me, I shall ever feel deeply indebted to Chicago."

"Why so?" asked Bangs, a Chicago man.

"Because a girl from that place saved my life."

"When?"

"Last summer when I was up on the lakes. Got shipwrecked, you know."

"How was it?"

"There was a Chicago belle on board our boat and she was our salvation. Saved the whole ship's company."

"Didn't swim ashore with all of you?"

"No."

"How then?"

"Noble girl! she wore cork-soled shoes which she lashed together with the strings and made a raft. We all got aboard and floated safely ashore."

And then it was so quiet you might have heard a clap of thunder while the bartender set out the bottle and glasses.

Scene in a car. Seats all occupied. Enters a person dressed as a lady. Bright little boy rises and offers his seat. Lady drops into it with an air of disdain. Boy: 'Oh I beg your pardon: did you speak?' Lady: 'No I didn't say anything' Boy: 'Oh, excuse me, I thought you said 'thank you.' Lady (in high dudgeon): 'You may have your seat.' Boy (resuming it): 'Well, I'll thank you.' Passengers convulsed. Lady disappears at next street crossing.

A Detroit man brought home a keg of whiskey and hid it in a closet. His wife, going there, ran against it in the dark and slapped it so hard that she cut her hand on a hoop. She was under the impression that her husband was trying to kiss her.

HUMOROUS.

'Where do you suppose that man is driving?' inquired an Austin gentleman pointing to a flashy dressed fellow behind a stylish team. 'Into bankruptcy,' was the quick reply of a bystander.

A pedagogue complimenting one of his little pupils on his deportment observed: 'You are a good boy; your mother must have taken pains to raise you.' 'Yes, it was quite painful,' said the pupil; 'she raised a blister every time.'

A bride complained to her husband that she had been too busy to get off her feet once, and that unhappy man, who had already discovered several 'make-ups' in her construction, exclaimed, in amazement: 'Great heavens! do they come off, too?'

'What is the first thing to be done in the case of fire?' asked Prof. Steans. 'Sue the insurance company,' promptly answered the boy at the foot of the class, whose father had his home burned once or twice.

'It isn't that I care about a little work now,' said an incorrigibly lazy fellow, 'but I'm afraid if I once begin to earn my own living I shall always be expected to do it.

A Philadelphia man in a sleeping car went through a terrible accident in which the sleeping car rolled down an embankment, without waking. It was noticed, however, that as the car struck the bottom, he murmured, 'Don't Jane, don't; I'll get up and start the fire.'

Modern Elijah, who inclines to be facetious—"I'm getting to be pretty bald ain't I? Guess you'l have to cut my hair for about half price hereafter, eh?" Tonsorial artist, who is equal to the emergengy: Oh, no, sir. we always charge double when we have to hunt for the hair!'

A book agent, who was wearing a small piece of court-plaster on his face, removed it while shaving, a few mornings since, and replaced it, when his toilet was complete. Contrary to his usual experience, as he went about his business during the rest of the day, he was everywhere received with smiles, which grew broader and broader, until at last somebody laughed in his face. Led by this to look in the glass, he was somewhat taken aback to discover that instead of the court-plaster he had affixed to his face a little, round, printed label, which had fallen from the back of a new mantle-clock, purchased the day before, and which bore the inscription, 'Warranted solid brass.'

HE HAD NEVER THOUGHT OF IT.

They had been engaged for fifteen years, and she was now, as it were, in the sere and yellow leaf. 'Darling,' he said, in gentlest accents, 'our betrothal has been very sweet, has it not?'

'It has, it has indeed, my own.'

'But it has been very long, don't you think?' she asked.

'Yes, it has been pretty middlin' long,' he replied.

'I was thinking, dearest,' she continued, 'that it is nearly old enough now to go out and work for its living. Couldn't we have it learn a trade, or put it out at interest or do something with it so that we might realize upon it. It has been about home so long, burning gas and coal, and is now nearly full-grown. It seems like a shame to have it loafing around any longer.'

'But, my love——'

'And just think,' she interrupted, 'In six years it will have a vote. I don't care so much about it myself, but pa and ma and the rest of the family are kicking like a steer. What would you suggest?'

'I am sure I don't know, my pet,' he replied, helplessly. 'What do you think?'

'We might get married.'

'That's so, I never thought of that.'

Teey are going to be married next Thanksgiving.

P. GRAY MEEK, Chairman

THE miners and laborers in the Schuylkill coal regions are organizing unions against monopoly. They feel that something must be done to protect themselves against the steady decline of wages, half-time work and the competition of the low-priced and filthy Hungarians.

They have been suffering under these reductions for the last three years, and are convinced that the protection system held up by some politicians is more beneficial to the capitalists than to the laborer. The unions preserve secrecy and no details can be obtained about their inner workings.

A Movement for Hancock.

There is a quiet developement of opinion in Democratic circles in favor of the renomination of General W. S. Hancock. It is now clearly believed by every one of the politicians that Tilden is out of the race through his physical condition and that therefore Hancock is a very available man. His great popularity and the fact that it was largely the handicap of the unpopular English that defeated him in 1880 are remembered. Hancock, with a popular man for Vice President, it is thought would make a strong ticket and one that will probably receive consideration at the hands of the Democratic Convention.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 26, 1884.

There is much interest on all sides to know just what position the majority in the House will take on the Morrison Tariff bill, and for two weeks past the question has been earnestly discussed, among the Democrats, whether it should be made a party matter and sanctioned by caucus action. Beyond all question, a large majority of Democratic Representatives are in favor of the bill, and if a caucus is held it will be adopted. But Mr. Randall and some others are not disposed to be bound by such action, if taken. Efforts have been made to arrive at an understanding, but, as yet, none has been effected. It is unfortunate that a united front cannot be presented and harmonious action secured. In view of all the circumstances it seems unfortunate that the question should have come up at this time; yet it is now the leading question in our politics and one that must be met sooner or later. Nothing can be gained by a policy of dodging and cowardice. If the Democratic masses are for tariff reform, as they undoubtedly are, the party in Congress can do no less than show the courage of their convictions and stand or fall by the position taken. The policy of having no policy and of standing round waiting for something to turn up, running for cover every time anything happens, is not a lofty or winning business for any party.

It has been again said lately that Secretary Lincoln would resign his place in the Cabinet because his name is mentioned in connection with the Presidential nomination. But I would not advise him to do it. His candidature, if such it is, grows out of a sentiment that might possibly give him second place on the ticket, but hardly the first. The only strength he possesses is that which he derived from the reat name of his father and the affection in which his memory is held by the people Charlie Farwell, of Chicago, who is the leader of the opposition in Illinois to General Logan, may use Lincoln in an effort to deprive Logan of a few delegates from that State, but at this time Mr. Lincoln does not occupy much space as a Presidential candidate. His nomination for the first place would be as great a surprise to the Republican managers as was that of Garfield in 1880. For the second place Mr. Lincoln stands an excellent chance, provided, of course, Logan should fail to get the first place. Either Blaine and Lincoln, or John Sherman and Lincoln would possess greater strength than to name Lincoln for the first place in connection with any of the names that are likely to be presented for the Vice Presidency.

When the Keifer-Boyton investigating committee sent to the Treasury Department last week for a few official papers, they were very much surprised to have the venerable Secretary come to the committee room in person to deliver them—a duty which could have been performed by any messenger or clerk, as no subpœna had been issued for anybody. Apropos to this. I heard a good story the other day about the Secretary. It illustrates his way of trying to do everything and depending on others for nothing, a habit which has naturally made his duties in the department very arduous. A gentleman who knew about this habit of his, conversing with him one day remarked: "Mr. Secretary, I see you do everything in this department except one thing." "What is that?" said Mr. Folger "Why, you don't run the elevator," said the gentleman. That is about the only thing he does not do.

PHONO.

Miscellaneous.

The swine plague, or hog cholera, is reported quite prevalent in Arlington and neighboring towns of Massaneusetts. One farmer has lost nearly 200 hogs.

Frank L. Chamberlin, a Cleveland sportsman and local celebrity, after 11 years study, has perfected a machine capable of charging 1,500 shotgun cartridges per hour.

There is a boy in Venango county who is inanimate during the day, not the slightest sign of consciousness being shown until after dark, when he comes out of the stupor and is apparently entirely well.

An observatory, to be called the Schell Observatory, in memory of Daniel Schell, will be built by Franklin and Marshall College, Lancaster. A telescope to cost $5,500 will be placed in it. It is proposed to build an annex to the observatory—to contain the library and cabinet—and this will entail an additional expense of about $3,500, to which Congressman A. Herr Smith heads the subscription list with $200.

The town council of Mahanoy city appointed a committee to investigate the rumors concerning the habits of Hungarian laborers imported into that section at a recent meeting. The committee found 390 persons in twenty places visited, and men, women and children sleeping promiscuously in one room. Sanitary rules will be enforced in the matter.

It will be gratifying news to the male devotees of fashion to know that the tooth-pick shoe is no longer the thing. Gentlemen will no longer box their toes up in a half inch of width, the medium broad toe having the preference. The box-toed shoe has taken a step to the rear and the shelack-lined toe has taken its place. This will remove the stubby look from the feet. The imitation lace shoe, with patent leather lining and small eyelets, is drawing to the front. It is good-looking and easy to walk in. The only styles of the season will be the congress button and lace The lace shoes, which will have blue or wine-colored facing and small eyelets, are a shoe of good appearance and also made to be very easy on the foot. The pointed shoe will not be worn at all. This shoe has had the shortest run of any style yet introduced. Boots are fast going off the boot and shoe firms' lists. It is said that there is hardly one pair sold now to 100 pairs of shoes.

WHITE BLACKBOARDS. — White "black boards" have been introduced in German schools, and are considered an improvement over the black or slate-colored boards heretofore in use. They are said to be better for the eyesight of pupils and very much better for exercises in drawing. Prepared wooden boards are displacing the use of slate in this country, and they can be easily prepared in white or light colors to receive marks in charcoal or black crayon.

John W. Wright, esq, of Glen Hope, Clearfield county, handed his pastor three checks as he was about leaving for conference —one for $1.000 for the missionary society; one $500 for the board of church extension of the Methodist Episcopal church, and one for $500 for the Women's foreign Missionary society. He is a relatiye of the venerable Rev. Henry Boehm, and was baptized in infancy by Bishop Asbury. Having been a worthy member of the church for more than half a century. He is still one of the links that bind the past to the present.

Foreign immigration was on the decline for the last few months. During the month of February the arrivals of immigrants at American ports aggregated 15,862, against 17,065 during the same period for 1883. For the eight months ending with February the arrivals were 266'228 against 300,484 for the corresponding period of 1882-1883. There was a slight increase in the arrivals from Australia and Germany and a falling off from all other contries. As usual, Germany holds the first place, fretting the soul of Bismarck at the loss of his prospective soldiers. While England and Wales furnished the second largest contigent of future American citizens of foreign birth, Canada holds the third place and Ireland fourth.

A Ploughman Turns up a Jug that Enriches and Intoxicates Him.

SAVANAH, Ga., March 16.—While Mr. Samuel McDaniel, a young white farmer, was ploughing in a field near Island Shoals, his ploughshare suddenly disclosed to view a large earthen jug securely corked and sealed. Opening it McDaniel recognized the smell of whiskey and liquid proving to be a fine old article, he sat down and continued drinking until he fell asleep. Worried by his continued abscence, the man's mother sought him out and awakened him. The weight of the jug attracted Mrs. McDaniel's attention, and a closer examination resulted in the discovery of 1,900 five-dollar gold pieces or a total of $9,500. McDaniel's grandfather was a captain in a Florida regiment in the time of the war and was killed in battle. It is almost certain that the money just found was part of the dead captain's fortune. Search for more gold is progressing.

Bread is the staff of life, so is advertising the staff of business. Blessed are they who do not advertise, for they shall rarely be troubled with a customer. You can't eat enough in a week to last you a year, and you can't advertise on that plan either. Business can go without advertising, so can a wagon go without greasing, but in both cases it is hard work. No bells ring so loud as a good advertisement. People are more apt to heed what they read than what they hear. Those who take the lead in pushing their business through the newspaper, generally take the lead in everything else. If you don't mean to attend to your business, and prefer a slender income while your neighbors grow rich, it won't pay to advertise. Judicious advertising is sure to bring large returns, to increase your business reputation, to add to your acquaintance. If you haven't business, advertise. If you have business, advertise. It is a "poor rule that won't work both ways."

A place well advertised is known to many while one not advertised is known only to a few passers-by. Quiting advertising in dull times is like pulling down a dam when the water is low. When trade revives, it will rush by him who does not stay it with ready customers. The way to have such always on hand is through advertising.—Ex.

Illinois' Governor Shot at.

CHICAGO, March 24.—A dispatch from Springfield, Ill., says: "While Governor Hamlinton was in his office at the state house this afternoon a pistol shot crashed through a window into the executive mansion. A man at work in the vicinity, asserts that the shot was fired by a boy who was engaged in pigeon shooting, but from the fact that an occurance precisely of the same nature, preceeded it a short time ago, there are apprehensions of a plot to assassinate the state executive."

MOLLY MAGUIRES.

Notorious Outlaws Near Richmond Supposed to be in League with Them.

PORT RICHMOND, Pa., March 24.—A number of notorious outlaws, who are supposed to be in league with the Molly Maguires that find a safe refuge in this section, have formed an oath-bound brotherhood, and under the guidance of black-listed miners formerly employed in the Monongahela valley will visit the disturbed sections of the coal fields of western Pennsylvania to perpetrate a series of Molly Maguire outrages. Among those outlaws are a number of desperate men, who are believed to be fugitive murderers and conspirators and they will be vigilantly shadowed by members of the detective corps, employed by the coal and railroad company. The chief of the coal and iron police of Clearfield, Westmore land and Fayette counties have been privately apprised of the intended visit and a sharp watch will be kept upon the marauders as soon as they make their advent in those regions.

LOCAL DEPARTMENT.

—Mr. J. L. Syangler, of Bellefonte, was in town on Saturday.

—Mr. E. Brumgard contemplates going to Dakota some time this spring.

—Easter—the next holiday—April 13th. Time to be gathering up the eggs.

—Mr. A. Marx of Sunbury, the pleasant commercial man, called to see us on Saturday.

—Sheriff Dunkle's visits in town makes things look somewhat dark. He was in town last week.

—The ministers of the M. E. Church of this state are prohibited to use tobacco in any shape or form.

—Druggist Eisenhuth reports a rapidly growing demand for McDonald's Celebrated Worm Powders.

—The New York horsedealers took another lot of horses out of this section last week to be shipped to that city and used on the street car lines.

—Some remarkable cures in this vicinity of long continued and obstinate deases are atributed to McDonald'sBlood Purifier.

FOR RENT.—Mr. Jacob Wolf's tailor shop at Aaronsburg can be rented at any time. Apply to him at B. O. Deininger's residence, Millheim Pa.

—Subscribers to the JOURNAL who contemplate changing their places of residence will please notify us of the change, giving the name of their post office.

—Three houses were put up and under roof on Water street this and last week and several others are to follow in the near future. That's what we call a building boom.

—The wedding parties were serenaded by our band last week, and the groom, Rev. Benfer returned the compliment by swelling the treasury of that organization.

—Adam Harter is engaged in clerking for H. H. Tomlinson. He makes a clever clerk and we think his employer as well as the many customers will be pleased with him.

—D. I. Brown has moved his tinshop into Reighard's house, opposite Tomlinson's store on Main street and requests his friends and patrons to come and see him there.

—Tomlinson's and Luse's sales on Monday aad Tuesday afternoon were well attended. The weather was very fair and the people felt like being out and inhale the spring air.

—Miss Katie Alexander had a severe fall the other day, by which she sprained her ankle so as to be compelled to use crutches for several days. She is doing right well at present.

—Mr. Edward Frank, the gentlemanly clerk in Musser & Smith's hardware store, was struck with the western fever and expects to pull up stakes and travel to Dakota in a few weeks.

—Dr. Milton Valentine, President of Pennsylvania College, at Gettysburg, has been elected President of the Lutheran Theological Seminary, to succeed the late Dr. Charles A. Stork.

—The work on the railroad link from Spring Mills to Bellefonte has commenced in earnest and sometime this summer we can expect to take a ride to the county seat behind the iron horse.

LOST.—The subscriber lost two promisary notes against Dr. J. F. Alexander. They are of no value to any outside party and the finder would confer a favor by returning them to

A. R. ALEXANDER.

—The bluebirds and robins were in a splendid humor beginning of this week on account of the fair and mild weather. But treacherous April is coming and they may very often have to seek a retreat yet.

—The Millheim Mus. A. will meet in the Luth. Chapel next Saturday evening. Their membership numbers 42 at present and several more are expected to join the society at the next meeting.

—Mr. L. C. Runkle gave us a pleasant call on Tuesday morning. He paid friends in this town a pop visit, having come here on Monday evening and left on Tuesday for Spring Mills. Come again, Lot.

—In two weeks from yesterday the democratic state convention will meet at Allentown. Chairman Hensel made all the necessary preparations and thinks that the business of the convention can be done in two days.

MUSIC SCHOOL.—The 24th session of the Musical College at Freeburgh, Pa., will begin on Tuesday morning, April 29th, and will continue six weeks. For circular address

F. C. MOYER,
Musical Director.

—The following parties from town will all start for the West on Tuesday the 8th of April: Mr. H. K. Luse, H. H. Weiser and family, E. Brumgard and family and Edward Frank. We wish them all a safe journey and good success.

—Mr. John Miller, our expert butcher at the meat market tells us that he has killed and sold six beeves and one calf since he started up his business in town. We wish him all the success that has attended him in the past and more to it.

—Things sold remarkably well at Jacob Dutweiler's sale on Wednesday of last week. His six horses brought between $900 and a $1000, one selling at $240. The whole sale amounted to over $2000. He expects to leave this part of the country in a few weeks to go to Jewel City, Kansas.

—H. H. Weiser, one of our elder citizens, expects to move to Dakota week after next. He will make sale of his personal property on Saturday, April 5th, inst. He made up his mind rather late to go West but we wish him abundant success in his future home.

—Mr. J. Willis Musser has bought out the stage route from Woodward to Millheim, but also goes to Coburn every morning. He carries express and other goods from all points along the line at very moderate charges, and continues the calf and poultry business.

tf

—Mr. Samuel Weiser, Jr., who had been running Tomlinson's grocery department will enter the service of Musser & Smith, our hardware men. They have bought H. H. Weiser's tinning machineries, to be used in connection with their hardware store. Mr. Weiser will conduct that part of the business.

—We notice in the Reporter that Mr. H. W. Kreamer, of Centre Mills, will go into the mercantile business with Mr. Simon Harper of Centre Hall. They have rented J. O. Deininger's new store room at that place. Mr. Kreamer had at first intended to move into the brick house on Penn Street, as stated in one of our former issues.

—Thomas R. Zeigler administrator of the estate of the late Isaac Zeigler, deceased, of Rebersburg, gives notice in another column and also by posters, that he will sell the valuable real property of said estate, consisting of twenty-three and a half acres, situate near Rebersburg.

—Mr. John Kerstetter, Jr., still makes a business of doing special jobs at carpentry. John is really an expert at the business and has large experince, both in making out plans, specifications and drawings, as well as a practical workman. People who entrust their work into his hands can safely rely on having it done in best style at the lowest prices.

—Our esteemed friend, County superintendent Prof. D. M. Wolf, of Penn Hall, looked in on the JOURNAL on Monday and a right pleasant chat we had with him. His time had been very much taken up by the local institutes which were held in different sections of the county during the past winter. We hope he will soon call again and make his stay longer.

—The following article clipped from the Sunday Times gives the particulars of an accident which happened to the oldest daughter of Prof. Jos. Feehrer, well known to some of our readers:

A Young Lady's Narrow Escape.

SELINSGROVE, March 22.—Katie Feehrer who lives with her father on Water street, made a narrow escape from being killed this morning. She was carrying a loaded gun from the kitchen to an apartment up stairs and her dress became entangled with the hammer of the gun, which went off. The charge passed through her dress skirt and lodged in the partition. The young lady, through fright, fell in a faint and remained unconscious for some time.

—McDonald's improved Liver Pills are the most reliable and satisfactory Liver Pills made. Many Doctors buy them by the thousand for use in their daily practice. No higher mark of confidence could be quoted. We do not know any proprietary medicine that stands so high in the estimation of the medical profession as McDonald's improved Liver Pills. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded. Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

—The exhibition of the Rebersburg Grammar school last Friday evening was a splendid treat and was well attended by the people of that town and vicinity. The programme was composed of Dialogues, Speeches and Songs which were all rendered in a praiseworthy manner. "Ole Nickerdemus" sung by Elwin J. Bard, of Kremerville, deserves special mention. His clear and melodious voice and his agreeable and pleasant disposition make friends for him wherever he meets with company. The entertainment can be counted as one of the best Rebersburg has had for some time.

A $20 Bible Prize.

The publishers of Rutledge's Monthly offer twelve valuable rewards in their Monthly for April, among which is the following:

We will give $20.00 to the person telling us how many words there are in the Epistle of Jude, as recorded in the New Testament Scriptures (not the NEW REVISION,) by April 10th, 1884. Should two or more correct answers be received, the REWARD will be divided. The money will be forwarded to the winner April 15th, 1884. Persons trying for the reward must send 20 cents in silver (no postage stamp taken) with their answer, for which they will receive the May Monthly, in which the name and address of the winner of the reward and the correct answer will be published, and in which several more valuable rewards will be offered. Address RUTLEDGE PUBLISHING COMPANY, Easton, Pa.

—We notice in the Patriot that Rev. G. P. R. Sarvis will be the minister of the M. E. Penn's Valley charge.

—A letter from G. W. Holloway, of Burbank, Ohio, came too late for this week's JOURNAL: will appear next week.

—Messrs. Jonathan and A. J. Harter, of Millheim, will go into the harness business, having ordered a large and fine stock the other day. They expect to offer them at public sales at different times and places. Their first sale will come off on Saturday, April 12th, 1884, at Rebersburg, to which they respectfully invite everybody to come and give them a share of their patronage. They are live business men, fair and square dealers and expect to give satisfaction in every respect. They also keep a large stock of light and heavy, single and double harness, Checklines and Halters on hand which they will sell in town at any time.

—A paying investment.—At this season of the year when your cows fail in milk, your horses become rough in coat, your pigs refuse to thrive, the hens won't lay as many eggs as they should, you will find a package or two of McDonald's Celebrated Tonic and Blood Purifying Horse and Cattle Powders judiciously administered an investment that will pay big dividends. They are positively the best Horse and Cattle Powders made. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded. What other manufacturer dare make this offer. Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

—Mr. C. G. Bright, of Aaronsburg, the live agent for the White Sewing Machine, whose displaying advertisement appears in another column, would respectfully call the attention of our readers to the contents of said advertisement. The merits of the White Sewing Machine have been tested and indorsed by thousands of housekeepers and we advise all persons who are not already in possession of one of these excellent machines to give Mr. Bright their orders. He is prepared to prove that the "White" always gives satisfaction and that your household outfit is not complete without one. Besides he is a pleasant and obliging gentleman and easy to deal with. If you doubt it, go and give him a trial, before you bargain with other parties or for other machines.

—The Gettysburg and Harrisburg railroad is the most important short line built in Penusylvania, within the past year. It is 31½ miles in length, and runs from Carlisle, on the Cumberland valley railroad, in a general southerly direction to Gettysburg. The first 16 miles of the route is over the south mountain road, (a line built from Carlisle to the Pine Grove iron furnace,) to Hunters Run; then it turns more directly South, and begins to ascend the South mountain. For about 5 miles after leaving Hunters Run, the road winds in and out of the hills composing that ridge, until the summit is reached, 1000 feet above tidewater. On the other side of the mountain the slope is more gradual, and the grade becomes less steep until Gettysburg is reached. The road is built in the most substantial manner, with stone ballast, steel rails and every thing of Pennsylvania standard. The trestles are double in all their parts, and are said to be the strongest in this country. By this road, Gettysburg is but 49 miles from Harrisburg, and can be reached in two hours, thus making it accessible to the traveler, without inconveniencing him. Till now Gettysburg, "the shrine of the Late War," has been a sealed book to those most interested. The opening of this road, on the first of April, will enable everybody to get in and out of Gettysburg, by way of Harrisburg, quickly and with comfort.

—Now that the sudden and violent changes of the weather occur every twenty four hours, almost everyone has a troublesome cold, which, if neglected may produce results that will trouble you for the remainder of your life. Dr. Kessler's Celebrated English Cough Medicine is especially deserving praise in this class of complaints. It never fails! It never disappoints! Instructions for treatment of croup and whooping cough also accompany each bottle. Every family especially where there is children should have a bottle. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded. Sold by J. Eisenhuth, Millheim, Pa.

Madisonburg Splinters.

Mr. Ellis Shafer came home with 3 splendid horses the other day. Mr. Shafer is the boss horseman in this section.

Mr. David Shafer is on the road to Illinois. Got tired of Madisonburg.

Simon Hasel killed a calf the other day, weighing 150 pounds dressed.

Mr. C. Rachau expects to move away from this place. Sorry to see him go.

Mr. L. Bierly's exhibition was an enjoyable occasion and was witnessed by a house full of people.

Bartges Bros, are getting in loads of new goods and are doing a thriving business. They expect to give their customers the best bargains they ever had.

AN EXTRAORDINARY OFFER.

To All Wanting Employment.

We want Live, Energetic an Capable Agents in every county in the United States and Canada, to sell a patent article of great merit, ON ITS MERITS. An article having a large sale, paying over 100 per cent. profit, having no competition, and on which the agent is protected in the exclusive sale by a deed given for each and every county he may secure from us. With all these advantages to our agents, and the fact that it is an article that can be sold to every housewoner, it might not be necessary to make an "EXTRAORDINARY OFFER" to secure good agents at once, but we have concluded to make it to show, not only our confidence in the merits of our invention, but in its salability by any agent that will handle it with energy. Our agents now at work are making from $150 to $300 a month clear, and this fact makes it safe for us to make our offer to all who are out of employment. Any agent that will give our business a thirty days' trial and fail to clear at least $100 in this time, ABOVE ALL EXPENSES can return all goods unsold to us and we will refund the money paid for them. Any agent or General Agent who would like ten or more counties and work them through sub-agents for ninety days, and fail to clear at least $750 ABOVE ALL EXPENSES, can return all unsold and get their money back. No other employer of agents ever dared to make such offers, nor would we if we did not know that we have agents now making more that double the amount we guarranteed, and but two sales a day would give a profit of over $125 a month, and that one of our agents took eighteen orders in one day. Our large descriptive circulars explain our offer fully, and these we wish to send to every one out of employment who will send us three one cent stamps for postage. Send at once and secure the agency in time for the boom, and go to work on the terms named in our extraordinary offer. We would like to have the address of all the agents, sewing machine solicitors and carpenters in the country, and ask any reader of this paper who reads this offer, to send us at once the name and address of all such they know. Address at once, or you will loose the best chance ever offered to those out of employment to make money.

A Fatal Mistake of Children.

PHILADELPHIA, March 23.—A special dispatch to the Press from Meadville, says: "six children from the village of Velonia went out yesterday in search of "sugar water." Not finding a camp in operation the boys tapped some kind of a tree with their pocket knives and all the children sipped the juice. Soon all were taken sick and gave every symptom of being poisoned. George Custy, aged ten, is dead, and three others are considered beyond aid. The kind of tree furnishing the deadly poison is not known."

PHILADELPHIA, March 24.—1 a. m.—Another of the poisened children named Lizzie Pinkhouse, aged six, has died. The others now seem to be out of danger. It is now said the poison was not from sap as told by the children, but from eating the plant generally called wild parsnip or cowbank.—Patriot.

Information is telegraphed from Washington that a dangerous counterfeit of the twenty dollar silver certificates is in existence and liable to be extensively circulated. The minute description of the new counterfeit given by the Treasury Department should enable carefulmen to discover it and save themselves from loss thereby. The chief danger will be to those who are hurried in their transactions and who naturally suppose that all silver certificates, Treasury notes and national bank bills are good. The business public should study the description of the new counterfeits given by the department very carefully and not take it for granted that everything in the form of paper money bearing the apparent imprint of the United States Government is good.

Colorado Watch-Tinkers.

Greeley is also noted for its watchmakers. I sent my watch to the first one I heard of, and he said it needed cleaning. He cleaned it. I paid him two dollars and took it home, when it ran two hours and then suspended. Then I took it to another watchmaker, who said that the first man had used machine oil on its works and heated the wheels so as to gum the oil on the cogs. He would have to eradicate the cooked oil from the watch and it would cost me three dollars. I paid it and joyfully took the watch home. The next day I found that it had gained time enough to pay for itself. By noon, however, it had fatigued itself so that it was loosing terribly, and by the day following had unfolded its still hands across its pale face in the sleep that knows no waking. I took it to the third and last jeweler in the town. Every one said that he was a good workman, but a trifle slow. In the afternoon I went to see how he was getting along with it. He was sitting at his bench with a dice cup in his eye, apparently looking at the digestive economy of the watch.

I looked at him some time, not wishing to disturb him and interfere with his diagnosis. He did not move or say anything. Several people came in to trade and get the correct time, but he paid no attention to them.

I got tired and changed from one foot to the other several times. Then I asked him how he got along, or something of that kind, but he never opened his head. He was the most preoccupied watch savant I ever saw. No outside influence would break up his chain of thought when he got after a diseased watch.

I finally got on the outside of the shop and looked in the window, where I could get a good view of his face.

He was asleep.—BILL NYE.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female physicians and nurses in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

"Who Rang the Liberty Bell?"

A few months ago, the question "Who rang the Liberty Bell?" came up in the history class of the senior division of the 3d Ward grammar school, of this city, and all hands had more than they could do to answer it. It was there suggested that the question be sent to some of the Philadelphia papers for an answer, and Miss Dessie C. Lesher is the first to report an answer, through the Golded Days, James Elverson, Publisher. It is interesting and curious, and not in accord with our historians; here it is:

"A prominent authority states that the story about the ringing of the "Liberty Bell" on July fourth, 1776, by an old man, accompanied by a little boy, who cried out. ring! ring! is a pure fiction, the outcome of a futile imagination of a well-known novelist. Excepting the members of Congress who were sitting in secret session, no one knew that the Declaration was being considered by that body. The resolution of July 2d, 1776, was of the greatest importance, the paper setting forth the reasons of the act being considered a matter of but little moment by persons not in Congress. There was a public celebration on the 8th of July, when all the bells in Philadelphia were rung. The name of the bell-ringer at that time was Hurry.

All things considered, the above seems to be a more plausible account of this 'bit of history' than the one found in our school histories, and has been accepted by the above named class and their teacher.—Clinton Democrat.

When the State is corrupt, then the laws are most multiplied.

The worst of villians do not like to portray themselves in their true colors.

Mr. Vanderbilt on His Riches.

"I believe I am the richest man in the world. In England the Duke of Westminster is said to be worth $200,000,000, but it is mostly in lands and houses. It does not yield him two per cent. A year from now I shall be worth more than $200,000,000 and will have an income equal to six per cent, on that amount." He owns 930,840 railway stock, valued at $88,750,000, his railway bonds amount to $26,857,420, he holds $70,580,000 in other securities—the aggregate wealth of this Midas being $201,332,413. Philadelphia, Feb. 1, 1884.

To Farmers of Pennsylvania:

Gentlemen:—For over twenty eight years we have manufactured Raw-Bone Phosphates, and our brands have become household words in nearly every section of the country. In many communities the demand for them has increased, while in others the sales have declined, on account of the preference for lower priced goods. Six years ago, finding that the demand for goods of lower cost had become almost universal, and having peculiar advantages of raw materials and manufacturing facilities, we determined to meet this demand, and introduced a TWENTY-FIVE DOLLAR PHOSPHATE, made by a NEW PROCESS EXCLUSIVELY OUR OWN. The quickness with which this Phosphate sprang into use among intelligent farmers will be shown by the following statement:

Of the $25 Phosphate there were sold

During	1879,	1,287 Tons.
"	1880,	3,957 "
"	1881,	5,147 "
"	1882,	8,288 "
"	1883,	10,128 "

The reports of the action of the $25 Phosphate have been satisfactory in every case from a wide inquiry. We want to be informed upon this point very plainly, as it is our interest to know if the article continues to produce good results. We will thank any farmer, having used the $25 Phosphate with disappointing results, to let us hear from him with full facts.

Yours truly,

Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR

For the cure of

Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration,

CONSUMPTION

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the cause, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.

DR. JOHN BULL'S

Smith's Tonic Syrup

FEVER and ACUE

Or CHILLS and FEVER,

AND ALL MALARIAL DISEASES.

The proprietor of this celebrated medicine justly claims for it a superiority over all remedies ever offered to the public for the SAFE, CERTAIN, SPEEDY and PERMANENT cure of Ague and Fever, or Chills and Fever, whether of short or long standing. He refers to the entire Western and Southern country to bear him testimony to the truth of the assertion that in no case whatever will it fail to cure if the directions are strictly followed and carried out. In a great many cases a single dose has been sufficient for a cure, and whole families have been cured by a single bottle, with a perfect restoration of the general health. It is, however, prudent, and in every case more certain to cure, if its use is continued in smaller doses for a week or two after the disease has been checked, more especially in difficult and long-standing cases. Usually this medicine will not require any aid to keep the bowels in good order. Should the patient, however, require a cathartic medicine, after having taken three or four doses of the Tonic, a single dose of BULL'S VEGETABLE FAMILY PILLS will be sufficient.

BULL'S SARSAPARILLA is the old and reliable remedy for impurities of the blood and Scrofulous affections—the King of Blood Purifiers.

DR. JOHN BULL'S VEGETABLE WORM DESTROYER is prepared in the form of candy drops, attractive to the sight and pleasant to the taste.
